FOOD LABEL INSTRUCTION

A systematic pre-packaged food label is not only legally mandatory but also keeps the customer informed while making a purchase decision. It will help them to store and use it safely without mislead. Food label should allow people to plan when they will consume it - all of which help to reduce food wastage'

Today customers are more invested in nutritional information, especially as the number of food-related diseases and health problems are on the rise, so make sure your food label is communicating a correct message with customers
